

THE STRANGE STORY.

How Captain Slattery Received a Severe Beating and Was Robbed.

St. Louis, Mo., October 6.—Captain D. P. Blaterry, president of the Merchants' Elevator, company and a prominent and wealthy citizen lies at his home, in a fashionable quarter of this city, unconscious from a brutal beating received in the afternoon of Saturday, October 5, recognizable, and there is an ugly hole in the back of his head. His pocketbook, containing about $40, a diamond stud valued at $1,500 and a valuable gold watch are missing.

Edward Klosterman, who keeps a saloon on Cass avenue, tells the story and says that his wife, shortly after one o'clock, was startled by a strange man, without shoes, hat or coat, walking towards her bed. He and his bartender were attracted by a noise and Klosterman says he hit the man, who then got out of the elevator, with a pair of his hands and then turned and ran over to a friend named Alexander Hunt. Hunt took Slattery out and beat him brutally. All this time Slattery, they say, uttered not a word. A crowd gathered and some assert that they saw Hunt take the man from the elevator. Slattery then turned and ran over to the police station where he was immediately recognized. Hunt, Klosterman and others were arrested. Slattery is in a very dangerous condition.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 7, 1869.

"Atlanta Day" and The Exposition.

At 10 o'clock today the gates of the Piedmont exposition grounds will be thrown open, and at noon the second exposition will be formally inaugurated.

It will be a great day for the exposition, a great day for Atlanta, and a great day for Georgia.

Today is Atlanta's day, and it should be a day worthy of Atlanta.

Upon this opening the success of the exposition is, in a great degree, due. Today means a great deal to the exposition. If the attendance is what it should be it will mean that the people of Atlanta give hearty endorsement to the work of the directors, and Atlanta's verdict will be the verdict of the state. If the exposition starts with a boom the fondest hopes of the directors will be realized.

All Atlanta will shut up shop at eleven o'clock today, and everybody who can possibly do so should go to the grounds. The exercise will be interesting, and the show will be worth ten times the price of admission. The programme, which appears in another column, shows that today will be full of interest. Horse races, balloon ascensions with a drop from the clouds, the Wild West show—back of all this, and above it, the great exposition itself—all this insures a day of enjoyment.

Let everybody go out to the grounds today. Twenty-five thousand Atlantians should see the show and help make this the greatest opening of the grandest exposition this country has ever seen!

Mahone In Poetry and Prose.

Before General Mahone had developed the baser side of his nature, one of Virginia's poets, James Barron Hope, wrote a ringing bit of verse entitled "Mahone's Brigade."

The poet had a good theme, for Mahone and his men were bloody fighters, and it was only natural that Mr. Hope, in his stirring rhymes, should make the most of his subject.

But General Mahone and his friends have made a mistake in circulating this poem as a certificate of character. The Virginian democrats promptly recollected that Mr. Hope wrote prose as well as poetry, and they went to work and unearthed one of his editorials which completely wiped out the Mahone lyric.

Just at present the Virginians think more of Mr. Hope's prose than they do of his poetry—it gives the writer's later and more serious views, and makes a very good campaign document. When the poet got down to the level of plain English he did not hesitate to say that Mahone was as dangerous as Catiline, Jack Cade or Pescara—"proud, greedy, cruel, without religion and without humanity." He denounced him for arraying class against class, and race against race, without the apology of fanaticism or pique of insanity, and appealed to all honest and God-fearing men to rebuke the mad ambition of one who was determined to rule or ruin.

It goes without saying that this sort of talk has more gum in it than a ton of lumpy-tum drum and trumpet verses. Poetry is all very well in its way, but a little red hot prose knocks it out every time.

The Cotton Movement.

The New York Financial Chronicle, in its weekly review of the cotton movement says that for the week ending last Friday, the total receipts have reached 245,374 bales, against 191,833 bales last week and 136,348 bales the previous week; making the total receipts since the 1st of September, 1869, 718,173 bales, against 493,499 bales for the same period of 1868, showing an increase since September 1, 1869, of 224,674 bales.

The exports for the week reach a total of 181,608 bales, of which 89,928 were to Great Britain, 47,630 to France and 44,041 to the rest of the continent. The total sales for forward delivery for the week are 332,409 bales. For immediate delivery the total sales foot up 2,214 bales, making 139 for export, and 2,075 for consumption. Of the above 67 bales were to arrive.

The imports into continental ports have been 7,000 bales. There is an increase in the cotton in sight of 181,270 bales as compared with the same date of 1868, a decrease of 516,469 bales as compared with the corresponding date of 1867, and a decrease of 119,444 bales as compared with 1866.

The old interior stocks have increased during the week 25,772 bales, and are 24,362 bales less than at the same period last year. The receipts at the same towns have been 11,958 bales less than the same week last year, and since September 1 the receipts at all the towns are 50,069 bales more than for the same time in 1868.

The total receipts from the plantations since September 1, 1869, are 782,490 bales; in 1868 were 576,334 bales; in 1867 were 1,030,131 bales. Although the receipts at the outports the past week were 245,374 bales, the actual movement from plantations was 282,373 bales, the balance going to increase the stocks at the interior towns. Last year the receipts from the plantations for the same week were 227,304 bales and for 1867 they were 280,224 bales.

The increase in amount in sight, as compared with last year, is 213,124 bales, the decrease as compared with 1867 is 270,043 bales and the increase over 1868 is 132,009 bales.

The Chronicle says that the speculation in cotton for future delivery at New York made on Monday last a sharp decline in prices under the reported collapse of the "corner" in Liverpool. The decline was assisted by increased receipts at the ports, and depression in the spot markets here and at the south.

But on Tuesday an early decline, in which October sold at 10:21 cents and January at 9-25 cents, was followed by a quick recovery and on Wednesday there was further advance, due to a stronger report from Liverpool, which brought in a demand to cover contracts. There were also fresh reports of damages by caterpillars in the Mississippi Valley, while stocks failed to show any considerable increase in our local warehouses.

Thursday a firm opening was followed by some depression, under weak reports from Liverpool. Friday there was some appearance of a "corner" in October contracts, which carried the price to 10-41 cents, but the issue of notices for delivery of no more than 3,500 bales was sufficient to check the advance, and the market turned easier, notwithstanding an interior movement smaller than for the corresponding week last year.

Cotton on the spot declined 1 cent on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, there being very little demand from any quarter. Friday there was a better demand from home spinners at 104 cents for middling uplands.

The Chronicle's telegraphic reports from the south are generally of a very satisfactory tenor, and indicate that under the influence of favorable weather conditions picking and marketing are making excellent progress in most sections.

According to all accounts, the democrats of Ohio have got the republicans walking the floor. Now, if the Enquirer will do some serious and solid campaign work, Campbell ought to have something more than a fighting chance.

The Cronin jury seems to be an elusive affair.

Mr. EDWARD ATKINSON says that twenty per cent. of all the food we eat is lost because we don't know how to cook it. This is a matter that touches the country in the neighborhood of the gizzard.

THOSE NORTHERN critics are sharp fellows. The Portland Transcript, speaking of Richard Malcolm Johnston's "Odegeese Cross-Firings" says: "The ignorance and superstition of the slaveholders, even among the higher classes, is shown as proof of the degrading influence of their manner of living." This view of the story will astonish Colonel Johnston.

Tis a fine day for Atlanta!

IF THE CITIZENS OF NEW YORK want to find out how to get up a world's fair they should come to the Piedmont exposition. Railroad rates are cheap, and the weather promises to be fine.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

THE ADVENTUROUS CAREER of that confederate soldier of fortune, Colonel St. Leger Greenleaf, is related in the October number of Drake's Magazine.

Two CENTURIES AGO the people on this continent resembled the English in their physique. Now they have an individual stamp of their own. Climate works wonders.

YOUNG MR. WILLIAM WHALEY, formerly of Charlotte, but now of New York, is in our country. The man who is about to marry his wife while delirious to marriage her property for $125,000, which he spent on women and in riotous living. Mr. Whaley has been turned out of the family mansion, and his wife's relatives are awaiting the result of her illness. If she dies it is their intention to prosecute him for embezzlement.

THE FAILURE OF BELFORD, CLARKE & CO., is a mystery. The firm published many erotic novels and they have an individual stamp of their own.

SONS OF HOMA HAVE QUEST TASTES. A man who was hanged in Minnesota last week sold his body to a medical college and made a present of the money to his sweetheart. It is to be hoped that the young woman's nerves are all right. Such a gift is well calculated to disturb a sensitive person.

SOME OF THE NORTHERN NEWSPAPERS are surprised to find that Jefferson Davis's article, "Does the Majority Rule," in Belford's Magazine, is written with all the vigor and clearness of a Gladstone. Age has not dimmed the confederate president's bright intellect.

THE CHARGE THAT MRS. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT is a plagiarist is laugh at literary people. If borrowed ideas constitute plagiarism most of us are guilty. The Latin writers borrowed from the Greeks, the Greeks from the Egyptians, the middle ages borrowed from the Latins, Shakespeare copied the Italians, and the writers of today appear to be ready within proper limits to profit by the work of their predecessors.

THE HISTORY OF LITERATURE is full of the exploits of literary impostors. It seems to be a common mania to seek literary distinction by claiming the authorship of popular works. A New York writer, referring to the attempt to deprive Mrs. Burnet of the credit of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," says: "William Cullen Bryant once told the present writer that a person who was not born until year after the first edition of a book, could not be the author of it." It is to be hoped that the young woman's nerves are all right. Such a gift is well calculated to disturb a sensitive person.

WHO WILL GET IT.

A Popular Grocer on Peachtree Street Offer
$25.00 For the Best Loaf of Bread Made of His Flour.

Mr. J. J. Duffy, one of the most popular retail grocers in the country, comes to the front this morning and offers $25 for the best loaf of bread made out of Duffy's Superlative flour, and exhibited at the coming Piedmont exposition. This is quite a liberal offer, and will, no doubt stimulate a great many people in the culinary line. The flour that Mr. Duffy has been selling—Duffy's Superlative—is said to be the best. This being offered by Mr. Duffy, in making this offer to the ladies of Atlanta, will doubtless secure a large patronage for his flour. It is to be remembered that this loaf of bread is to be made only from Duffy's Superlative, and no other flour will be brought into competition. Mr. Duffy is not afraid to compete with other bakers, but feeling that his flour is the best of all, offers $25 as a prize to the one making the finest loaf of bread out of it.

It might be added in this connection that Mr. Duffy has been styled one of the leading retail grocers of Georgia. He keeps everything that is usually kept in a grocery store, and sells his goods at a reasonable profit. Being located on one of the finest streets in the city, Peachtree, he has a fine trade among the leading people.

Now young ladies and old ladies, all who cook and all who eat, remember that Mr. Duffy offers the handsome sum of $25 for the best loaf of bread made out of Duffy's Superlative flour, exhibited at the exposition company. The company will appoint judges to decide the matter.

PAUL ATKINSON'S SUBSTITUTE

For Jute Bagging Indorsed by the President of the Farmers' State Alliance.

ATLANTA, Ga., October 3, 1889.—Paul M. Atkinson: Dear Sir—The substitute for jute bagging which you are selling I regard as a good one. Some bagging is rather poor, or less sufficient in getting a supply of cotton material. I would cheerfully recommend yours as an excellent substitute and one wholly independent of the jute trust.

Wishing you success, I am yours, etc.

L. F. LIVINGSTON,
President Ga. State Farmers' Alliance.

The substitute consists of strips forty-four inches wide and three yards and six inches long, and weight four and three-quarters pounds per hank, and one-half pounds per hank. They are much stronger, cheaper and heavier than the cotton bagging, and instead of losing forty cents on each hank of cotton weight, you will gain by using this substitute there is a clean gain of seven and five cents per hank over the cotton bagging, and fight the jute trust through it just the same as through the cotton bagging. Over 2,000,000 yards sold. Send all orders to Paul M. Atkinson, Madison, Ga.

Dr. M. Z. Cris, the dentist, has returned to the city, after several weeks' absence, and can now be found at his office, No. 43½ Peachtree street. Hours, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Through Sleeper to Charleston.

Commencing Sunday, October 6th, 1889, the Georgia railroad will open a new sleeping car line to Charleston, via Augusta and Yemassee, on train No. 28, leaving Atlanta 2.45 p.m., arriving at Augusta 5.15 p.m., arriving at Charleston 6.30 p.m. Returning sleeper leaves Charleston 10.30 p.m., arriving at Atlanta 1 p.m. E. The First in the South.

Ladies visiting Atlanta are invited to call and consult, if needed, Atlanta's most eminent female physician, Mrs. Rosa F. Monnich, M. D., the first and only female physician in her specialty south. She occupies with her husband, Dr. W. A. Monnich, the elegant three-story building at the junction of Peachtree and North Avenue, and has a room erected for her special use. Ladies' reception rooms, office and dispensary situated on first floor, while the two upper stories are used for a sanitarium. All modern conveniences, hot and cold water, gas, electric light, etc., in every room; in fact, elegantly furnished and kept in perfect condition. The ladies will be welcomed and treated with the greatest courtesy and respect. All patients remaining in the sanitarium receive separate rooms and enjoy the privileges and comforts of a first class home.

Connected with the sanitarium, but in a separate building, is a lying-in home for ladies who wish to be delivered in the most convenient, where they will receive the best attention compatible with their comfort and health—adv.
